DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 1 and 3 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding Claim 1, the phrase "or the like" renders the claim(s) indefinite because the claim(s) include(s) elements not actually disclosed (those encompassed by "or the like"), thereby rendering the scope of the claim(s) unascertainable. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

Regarding Claim 1, the phrase "in that it consists in" should be change to provide a more presentation of the invention.

Regarding Claim 1, the phrase "receive current wave substantially when such coincidences occur". Examiner requests change to the phrase by either taking out the word substantially or rewording the limitation to be more specific.

Regarding Claim 3, the phrase "...parameter is chosen to be large enough to command said controller". Examiner requests clarification of this limitation.

3. The claims (1-12) are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors.

4. Applicant is reminded that claims (2-12) dependent on the independent claim (1) are also rejected on 35 U.S.C. 112 second paragraph.
5. The following rejection is with the best intentions, knowledge and understanding of the claims. Examiner requests that the Applicant clarify the claims for apt prosecution.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

7. Claims 1-4, 7, 11 and 12 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bose.

Regarding Claims 1-4, 7, 11 and 12. Bose discloses a scalar decoupled control for a induction machine that produces a current set point (I_s^* and $\pm I_s^$ in Figure 1) expressed by the amplitude and the phase referred to as the rotor flux as a function of the required torque and flux (column 3 lines 1-37), predicting phase coincidences or error between the stator current ($[I_s]$ in Figure 1) and set point (I_s^ and $\pm I_s^*$ in Figure 1) (column 3 lines 26-37), commanding the controller/voltage controller (Figure 1 item 25) so that the windings receive a command current signal when coincidences or errors occur (column 3 lines 38-65).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

8. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

9. Claims 5-6 and 8-10 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bose (4418308) in view of Rowan et al (4996470).

Regarding Claims 5-6 and 8-10. Bose discloses a scalar decoupled control for a induction machine that produces a current set point (I_s^* and $\pm I_s^$ in Figure 1) expressed by the amplitude and the phase referred to as the rotor flux as a function of the required torque and flux (column 3 lines 1-37), predicting phase coincidences or error between the stator current ($[I_s]$ in Figure 1) and set point (I_s^ and $\pm I_s^*$ in Figure 1) (column 3 lines 26-37), commanding the controller (Figure 1 item 25) so that the windings receive a command current signal when coincidences or errors occur (column 3 lines 38-65). However, Bose does not disclose the use of thyristors to provide rotation direction of the multiphase main voltage.

Rowan discloses an electric motor speed control apparatus and method that includes thyristors (First page Figure items 16-18) connected multiphase main supply (first page Figure item A-C) and provide direction rotation of the multiphase main voltage (column 3 lines 58-68 and column 4 lines 1-27). Further, the rotor electromotive force is determined from the measured stator voltage, which controls and represents the speed of the motor (column 12 lines 19-68 and column 13 lines 1-67).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to use Bose scalar decoupled control for an induction machine with Rowan's electric motor speed control apparatus and method. The advantage of combining the two would provide a system by incorporating a mechanism for reducing the speed of the motor without the need of an additional device to reverse the connections of the motor to the AC power source.

Conclusion

10. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The prior art(s) pertaining to the control of induction motor is disclosed in the attached PTO-892.
